- C. Mission of the Program: The doctoral program in experimental psychology at Washington State University is designed to produce highly skilled experimental psychologists who have a strong background in general psychology as well as in-depth knowledge of their specialty area. Graduates will be well-prepared to identify significant research problems, and will be conversant with a wide variety of strategies for generating and testing hypotheses within their specialty area.

II. Membership

- A. Graduate Faculty within the Experimental Psychology program may be WSU tenured and tenure track faculty, WSU non-tenure track faculty, or WSU adjunct faculty, subject to the limitations and definitions in this document. All Graduate Faculty must be “Initial Program Faculty” (listed in Section XI of this document) or subsequently approved as Graduate Faculty through the process outlined in section B below.
 - 1. WSU Campus Participation
 - a. The doctoral degree in Experimental Psychology is offered through the Pullman and Vancouver campuses of Washington State University as approved and authorized by the Higher Education Coordinating Board (HECB) of Washington State. The campuses at Spokane and Tri-Cities support this program but are not approved and authorized by the HECB to directly advertise and offer the degree as individual campuses.
 - b. Approved tenured and tenure track Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty at all regional campuses and other affiliated university sites may participate equally in the Experimental Psychology program as supporting site faculty with full program rights and responsibilities. As such they are entitled to act as chair, co-chair, or member of graduate student committees; teach graduate courses; supervise research; and act as a program director or committee member.

2. Graduate Faculty Participation

- a. Graduate Faculty participation in Experimental Psychology is independent and separate from academic department, school, or college affiliations.
- b. All active members of the Graduate Faculty of Experimental Psychology are eligible to vote on program issues.

3. Disciplinary Expertise

Graduate Faculty within Experimental Psychology are expected to have a PhD or equivalent doctoral-level degree in a field related to Psychology. In addition, they must have demonstrated disciplinary expertise in a sub-field of Experimental Psychology, interest and experience in mentoring and teaching of graduate students in this field, and relevant professional accomplishments (detailed description of graduate faculty requirements is provided below in section B. 3.)

4. Active Research Appropriate to Experimental Psychology

Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty must be actively involved in research related to Experimental Psychology as evidenced by one or more of the following within the last 4 years: external grant or contract support, peer-reviewed publications, graduate student mentoring, teaching of relevant graduate level courses, or other relevant professional accomplishments.

5. Non-Tenure Track Graduate Faculty

a. Internal to WSU

Non-tenure track Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty internal to WSU include research and clinical faculty. These faculty may function in most of the same roles as WSU tenured and tenure-track faculty, including acting as co-chair or member of graduate student committees; teaching graduate courses; supervising research; and acting as a committee member. When serving as co-chair of a student committee they must work with a tenured or tenure-track faculty member who is an active member of the Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty.

b. External to WSU

Professionals who are not WSU faculty may be granted Graduate Faculty participation within Experimental Psychology if they are first officially approved as adjunct faculty for WSU. Adjunct faculty who are approved as active Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty are entitled to act as a member of graduate student committees, teach graduate courses, and supervise research. They may not serve as student committee chair or co-chair, Program Director, or as an Experimental Psychology Program committee member.

6. External Individual Committee Members

Individuals not officially participating as Graduate Faculty within Experimental Psychology (for example, a tenured or tenure-track faculty member from another program or university) may be approved to serve as a thesis/dissertation committee member for an individual student on a case-by-case basis. If the faculty member is recently departed from the WSU Experimental Psychology faculty and is chair of a student's thesis or dissertation committee at the time of their departure, the faculty member may serve as co-chair of that student's committee after they depart WSU (if they are willing); however, another faculty member in residence at WSU must be added to the committee at the time of the exiting faculty member's departure from WSU, and new co-chair assignments specified. The Chair of Psychology must approve the co-chair or committee member status of all external individual committee members, and the nomination (with curriculum vitae of the faculty member) is then forwarded to the Dean of the Graduate School for final approval.

B. Application for Membership

2. Candidates for Graduate Faculty participation within Experimental Psychology should be nominated by an existing Experimental Psychology Graduate Faculty member or may self-nominate. The nomination should include a letter of nomination and a curriculum vitae for the nominee. The Experimental Psychology Program Director will circulate application materials to all active Graduate Faculty prior to voting. Acceptance as Graduate Faculty requires a positive vote from a majority of faculty who respond to the vote.
3. In addition to a commitment to maintain the highest standards of mentoring for graduate students, anticipated contributions or qualifications for all successful Graduate Faculty applicants include one or more of the following:

- a. History or reasonable expectation of an active, funded research program that can plausibly be relied upon as the source of continuing support for an Experimental Psychology graduate student's research.
